you're playing that song live in front of people and you imagine that in a way for me, the online body positive movement has changed not just how I view other people, but how I view myself.

our only conversation in hours had been a heated debate about Google Maps.